WEATHER

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION:

NORTHERN CALIFORNIA AND CENTRAL COASTAL AREAS:

Medford Weather:

A blocking ridge will set up just off the British Columbia coast today while the upper trough that brought the gusty winds to the area yesterday settles into the southwest United States. This will allow high pressure to build in and then persist through Friday. Aside from some late night and early morning low clouds/fog along the coast, most areas can expect sunny, mild afternoons and clear, cool nights through the period.

Eureka Weather:

High pressure continues to build into the area bringing dry weather through the work week. This will warm temperatures and diminish winds as well. By Thursday some morning stratus and fog along the coast will develop and increase Friday and Saturday. Sunday and Monday a weak weather system may bring some light rain.

Reno Weather:

Low pressure will exit Nevada today with only a few showers south of Highway 50. Warmer, drier conditions are expected late this week and into the weekend with light winds. A weak system is possible early next week with a few showers.

San Francisco Weather:

A gradual warming is expected today through Friday as low pressure moves east and upper level high moves over the area. A weak storm system will bring some increased clouds and cooling this weekend but the forecast remains dry through the weekend and into early next week.

Sacramento Weather:

A few showers lingering over the mountains today, otherwise dry and milder weather for Northern California the remainder of the week.

WEATHER

CENTRAL CALIFORNIA AND SOUTHERN SAN JOAQUIN VALLEY:

Hanford Weather:

Low pressure over the great basin will keep a small threat of precipitation over the sierra today however high pressure will build over the region later this week with a warming and drying trend.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA:

Los Angeles Weather:

Below normal temperatures are forecast for Wednesday. High pressure will move in Thursday and kick off a warming trend that will extend into the weekend.

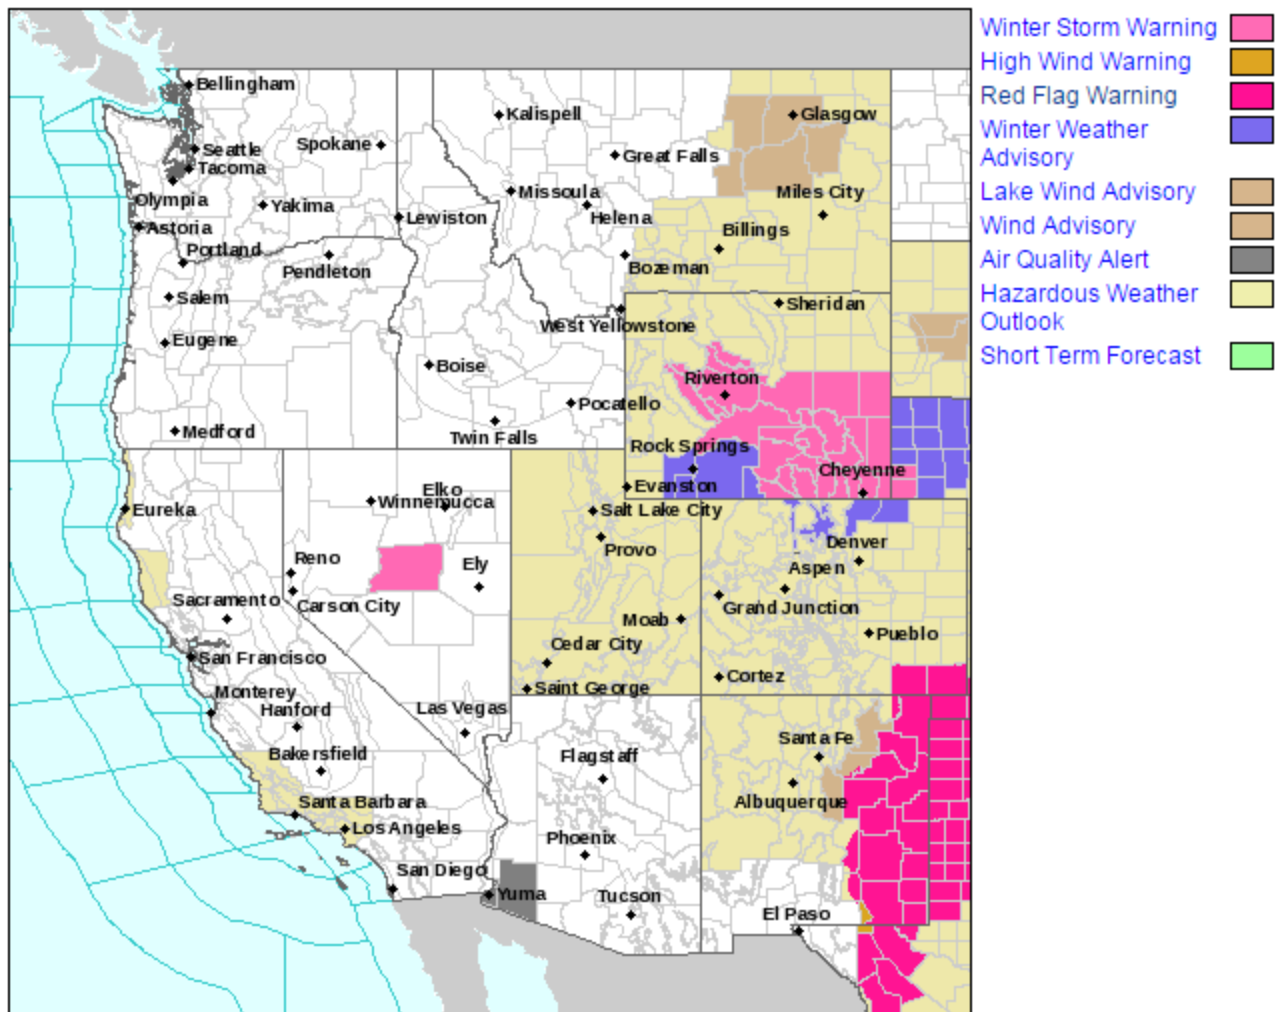

Extreme Southwestern California including Orange, San Diego, Western Riverside and Southwestern San Bernardino Counties:

Scattered showers will continue today mainly over and west of the mountains. There is a slight chance of thunderstorms this afternoon and evening as well. Showers will end overnight, and then mild and fair weather will prevail Thursday through early next week.

Southeast California Weather:

Low pressure will linger over the area through this afternoon with shower chances primarily tied to the higher terrain. Temperatures will remain several degrees below normal again today, but a warming trend across the region will begin Thursday and continue through the weekend.
